Small amounts of the nutrient are present in beef liver, cheese, egg yolks and mushrooms. Furthermore, this nutrient boosts your immune system and reduces inflammation within your body, potentially warding off future medical conditions in the process. It's highly unlikely to occur as a result of normal dietary intake and sun exposure. Daily Dosage Recommendations: The recommended dietary allowances for vitamin D vary depending on your age and other health and life circumstances, such as pregnancy. This deficiency can result in medical conditions, two of which are called rickets and osteomalacia. It's been suggested that getting approximately 15 minutes of sun exposure between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. at least twice a week to your face, arms, legs or back will help your body synthesize enough vitamin D. This way, you can be sure the vitamin doesn't interact negatively with your condition or medication. However, it's difficult to gauge exactly how much sun exposure can generate sufficient vitamin D, as overexposure can be harmful, too. Because vitamin D is a fat-soluble substance, it can stay in your body for several days. Supplements come in two forms: vitamin D3 (cholecalciferol), which is identical to the form your body makes when exposed to sunlight, and vitamin D2 (ergocalciferol), which differs slightly from D3 in its chemical side-chain structure. It's important to note that vitamin D poisoning usually only occurs with excessive intake of dietary supplements. It's commonly treated with an intense regimen of vitamin D replacement under the care of a physician. Vitamin D and Other Health Conditions: Vitamin D deficiency has been linked to cardiovascular disease, and people with lower levels of vitamin D appear to be at an increased risk of having a heart attack or stroke. It's important to note that you can't cover the exposed area of your body with sunscreen if you choose to get vitamin D naturally. If the climate where you live is primarily cloudy, it's important to get your recommended amount of vitamin D via other means. UV rays are also known to trigger free radicals, which can lead to skin cancer if left unchecked. It appears that people with low vitamin D levels are at greater risk of severe novel coronavirus (COVID-19) infection. It also plays a vital role in cell growth, neuromuscular functions and protein encoding. The best sources of naturally occurring vitamin D are oily fish such as salmon, tuna, cod, sardines and mackerel. But that's not all you'll want to know about vitamin D. Vitamin D is naturally found in certain foods and now appears in many more foods that have been fortified with added nutrients. Osteomalacia, characterized by soft and weak bones, is usually present in adults. Low vitamin D has been linked to an increased risk of contracting respiratory illnesses such as influenza A. For infants under 12 months, the recommended intake is 400 international units (IU) or 10 micrograms (mcg). Photo Courtesy: RealPeopleGroup/E+/Getty Images Rickets, a disease characterized by a failure of bone tissues to get enough minerals, can result in abnormal, soft bones and skeletal deformities. Photo Courtesy: kateho Seisa/E+/Getty Images If you have a pre-existing medical condition or other medical concerns, it's best to talk to a healthcare professional about determining your recommended dietary allowance for vitamin D. Fish liver oils are another good source of vitamin D. For individuals over 70 years old, the intake increases to 800IU (20mcg). If you're in the shade or behind a window, the rays will not get through. Photo Courtesy: Justin Page/DigitalVision/Getty Images Vitamin D is important for maintaining a healthy body, primarily because it helps you fully maximize your body's absorption and utilization of calcium, an important mineral that we all need. It's not clear yet if routine vitamin D supplementation would reduce this risk. It's important to look at the label and nutrition facts to verify that vitamin D is in a particular food you're considering. Thus, vitamin D poisoning is possible if you supplement too much vitamin D over a period of a few months. For individuals under 70 years old, the recommended intake is 600IU (15mcg). It appears that vitamin D deficiency is linked to the development of MS, and people with MS and higher levels of vitamin D appear to have reduced disease activity. Vitamin D can also help protect older adults from osteoporosis, which occurs due to excess bone loss from aging. When paired with calcium, vitamin D helps regulate bone remodeling and growth, ensuring healthy, strong bones. There's some evidence that vitamin D3 increases and maintains overall levels slightly better than vitamin D2. Side Effects of a Vitamin D Deficiency: Vitamin D deficiency occurs when you don't adequately absorb the nutrient or when your kidneys can't convert the nutrient to its active form. Dietary supplements are also an excellent way of obtaining vitamin D. Because dairy products are often fortified with vitamin D, lactose intolerant or vegan individuals should keep an eye on their diets to ensure they get enough of the vitamin. Studies have shown that a regular, healthy vitamin D intake can also serve as an antidepressant and make people feel generally happier. Photo Courtesy: Alexander Sapatari/Moment/Getty Images Commonly, vitamin D-fortified foods include whole milk, orange juice, margarine and breakfast cereals. Photo Courtesy: PixelsEffect/E+/Getty Images Research is also ongoing to find if there's a link between vitamin D and multiple sclerosis (MS). However, the exact relationship isn't clear, and there appears to be no benefit to cardiovascular risk in taking a vitamin D supplement. If left unaddressed, vitamin D poisoning can lead to anorexia, over-calification of the bones and internal organs, kidney stones and hypertension (high blood pressure). With the help of fortified foods today, rickets is almost obsolete in the United States. It's most common in children. Sun exposure is another method of naturally obtaining vitamin D, as our bodies can create their own vitamin D upon exposure to ultraviolet (UV) rays from the sun. Resource Links: 20D%20deficiency.pdf MORE FROM SYMPTOMFIND.COM Fortunately, it isn't permanent, and kids can consume as few as 1 to 3 teaspoons of cod liver oil a day to reverse the condition. Symptoms of vitamin D overdose include dehydration, vomiting, decreased appetite, irritability, constipation and fatigue. The SPF blocks UV rays and can hinder your body's ability to create vitamin D.
